

Jason Wallace Triefenbach

Jason Triefenbach is a multimedia artist born in rural Illinois and based in Los Angeles, CA. His overarching thematic concerns include an existential examination of the self in its processes, such as the nature of time as a biological function and a social construct, “otherness” in gender and sexuality, and the co-opting of public spaces as sites of trance and transgression.

"We emerge in works of instability and hybridity."

Through storytelling and the application of ceremonial and archetypal signifiers, the artist determines to confront and inhabit Mystery, Cruelty, Joy, and the Uncanny. This structuring of duration on site is achieved through theatricality, focused intention, and the internalization of collage processes so that the resulting images, objects and actions come to function somewhat as marks on a map, and the primacy of individual works is subsumed into conceptual clusters to be read in whole or in part- a system in continual growth and collapse.
